GERMAN VACATE BULLECOURT

Hindenburg Is Apparently Contemplating Another Strategic Retreat.

(Associated Press)
Petrograd, Mich. 18 — Premier Prince Lvoff today asked the Associated Press to send a message to the American people that as a result of last night's cabinet reorganization, Russia for the first time has prospects of a government possessing real authority. He said the crisis has passed and conditions are already improving.

BULLETIN.

Berlin, May 18 — The Germans have evacuated the ruins of the former village Bullecourt.

(Associated Press)
The formation of the new Russian cabinet in which six socialists have been included, has been completed and for the first time in weeks all the news from Russia is reassuring. Gen.
Alexiff, Grusloff and Gurko, who recently resigned, have resumed their commands.

Japan To Take Hand.

It is announced that Japan will take an active part in the great struggle. Japanese naval forces have arrived at Marseilles to join in the campaign against submarines, with the purpose of protecting French shipping. This unheralded action has raised political and military questions of supreme interest.

Hear Peace Rumor.

A dispatch received in London from Amsterdam says it is rumored at The Hague that a truce is about to be arranged between Russia and the central powers, as a result of the political changes in Petrograd. The rumor is characterized as being of German origin.

Plans Another Retreat.

Bullecourt is now in British hands and the Drocourt-Queant line appears to be doomed. Hindenburg is apparently contemplating another strategic retreat. The British are within two miles of Queant.

German attacks in the vicinity of Craonne have been repulsed, while in Lorraine the French have penetrated the German lines.

(Special Correspondence)

Arsenal Island, Rock Island, May 16—Today we enjoyed the warmest weather of the season, some of the boys not on guard sleeping in their shelter tents and others out on the open ground. A number of the men are taking advantage of the warm weather to have their hair clipped short, and three, on the tops of whose heads the hairs were few and far between, had them shaved clean.
In Bob Conners, Mike Schott and Louis Nunemaker we certainly have three of the "Seven Keys to Bald-

Since the opening of the baseball

CALL ALL MILITIA TO SERVICE JULY 25

WAR DEPARTMENT TODAY AN-NOUNCED FURTHER MOB-ILIZATION PLANS.

SENATE APPROVES DRAFT BILL

(Associated Press)
Washington, May 18—The war department announced today that all national guard units will be called into the federal service July 25. The guardsmen of all states will be mustered into the federal service between July 15 and August 5. The Illinois troops will assemble July 25, Iowa and Wisconsin, July 15.

The senate today adopted an amendment to the bill to put the conscription in force for four months after the end of the war. The amendment now goes to the house.

Washington, May 18.—The chief provision of the army conscription bill, the conference report on which was approved by the senate follow:

Raising the armed forces by the selective draft system, imposed upon all males between the ages of twenty-one and thirty years inclusive, subject to registration and certain exemptions from service; increasing the regular army to maximum war strength; drafting into the federal service of national guard units; raising of an initial force by conscription of 500,000 men, with addition of 500,000 if deemed necessary; raising, if the President sees fit, of four divisions of volunteer infantry
(the Roosevelt amendment); increasing the pay of all enlisted men as follows—Fifteen dollars addition monthly for those now receiving less than $21, comprising the bulk of the army, graduated downward to $6 additional monthly for those receiving $45 or more; prohibiting sale of liquor at or near army training camps and otherwise protecting morals of the soldier.

RECRUITING OFFICER
LEWIS IS IN DIXON

SEEKS VOLUNTEERS FOR COM-PANY BEFORE DRAFT LAW BECOMES OPERATIVE.

GOOD CHANCE FOR YOUNG MEN

Several Vacancies in the Non-Coms.
Ranks To Be Filled From Company.

Lieut. Lewis, recruiting officer for companies E, G and I and the machine gun company of the Sixth Regiment I. N. G. is spending his day and evening here to accept and forward recruits for Company G. As the draft measure is sure to become a law within a few days the young men of Dixon and vicinity are urged to enlist in their home company, where they will be among friends and under officers from their home city.

There are several vacancies in the offices of corporals and sergeants, occasioned by the discharge of married men, several of whom were non-commissioned officers. These offices will be filled from the ranks of the company and every member will be given an opportunity to study and prepare for these offices. Capt. Soper also has the privilege of sending two men of his company to the officers' training camp.

Under the draft law recruits will have no choice of the places to which they are to be sent and little chance for promotion, hence it is very much to a young man's interest to volunteer before the draft law goes into effect.

The camp at Rock Island is ideal and the surroundings, sanitary conditions and camp equipment are the best of any the company has ever been in.

Lieut. Lewis goes to Morrison from here and then to Geneseo Monday, returning to Dixon the latter part of next week, the exact date to be announced through this paper. He will return from Morrison tomorrow and spend the day here.

Start Campaign Tomorrow.

Tomorrow the biggest recruiting campaign in the history of Dixon will be started. Assisted by Capt. Ford, U. S. A., who is now in the reserve list and who with his partner are at the Family theatre in their vaudeville act, "A Night in a United States Army Outpost," Lieut. Lewis will "go after" recruits tomorrow. They will stage a number of novel ideas in proving to young men that the volunteer of today will get better treatment and more chances for advancement through serving with his friends and acquaintances, than will the conscript whom Uncle Sam will assign anywhere the government orders, not where the soldier desires.

Probably Die From Wounds.

(Associated Press)
Goodhope, Ill., May 18—Walter Niles, who was arrested as an auto thief here today, shot and killed Sheriff J. B. Barclay and probably fatally wounded himself. Niles was en route to jail in the auto which he was accused of stealing, with the sheriff.
Barclay's son was driving and the sheriff and prisoner were riding in the back seat. Niles tried unsuccessfully to kill the son, and then turned on the sheriff.

TWO GRAND CHILDREN IN DIXON

Word has been received in Dixon that Jeremiah Carpenter, an old resident of Gage county, passed away on Friday, May 4, at the home of his son, Theodore, of Beatrice, Neb., at the age of 97 years, 10 months and 26 days.

He was born in Lancaster Co., Pa., June 9, 1819. When he was 17 he removed to Maryland and the following year was married to Susan Cross of Boonesborough, Md. To this union were born nine children, seven sons and two daughters. All the sons are living except Jeremiah Carpenter, a resident of this city until his death on Dec. 25, 1913.

The sons surviving are H. F. of Los Angeles; Jonathan of Liberty, Neb.; L. F. Polo, Ill.; Theodore and Martin, Beatrice, Neb., and J. D. of Rockford, Neb. The oldest son is 77 years of age and the youngest will be 63 in August.

The deceased leaves 42 grandchildren, 73 great grandchildren and 4 great great grandchildren. Mrs. F. J.
Bender and Geo. Carpenter of this city are grandchildren.

Mr. Carpenter was a faithful Christian for more than 75 years and was a man whom everyone respected for his sterling character and loyalty to his friends. At his age he was remarkable, having retained all his faculties and transacted all his business affairs up to the time of his death. His mind remained young while his body grew old and his passing away caused much sorrow among his friends.

The recent action of the Dixon Chapter American Red Cross changing its name to the Lee County Chapter, and its extension of territory to take in all of the county, is very highly praised by John J. O'Connor, director of the Central division, in a letter to Chairman W. B. Brinton, in which Mr. O'Connor says the following nice things concerning the work of the local organization:

"We are indeed pleased to note the rapid progress which Dixon Chapter is making and are confident that your membership campaign—which is now drawing to a close—will bring the major part of the population of Lee county into the ranks of your organization.

Need Many Members

"From the present outlook the Red Cross cannot secure too many members and we, therefore, believe that it is necessary for all chapters to make the most strenuous efforts to enlarge their membership. However, if all the chapters would take up the work in the same spirit exhibited by the Dixon chapter in its field, there would be no question about the goal we have set in our present member-ship campaign being reached.

"We congratulate your chapter on the splendid showing it is making, and are convinced you will not rest upon your present attainments but will continue to enlist your best efforts in assisting the Red Cross to become an organization of which our Country may justly be proud."

FORMER SOUTH DIXON FARMER
PASSED AWAY THURSDAY —
PRIVATE FUNERAL SATURDAY

James Wilson Seybert passed away at his home, 708 Second street, at 3:45 o'clock Thursday afternoon, after an illness of seven weeks. Funeral services, which will be private, will be held at the home at 2:30 o'clock tomorrow afternoon, Rev. F. D. Altman officiating, and with burial in Oakwood cemetery. The casket will be open for friends to view the remains Saturday morning.

Mr. Seybert was born in Luzerne City, Pa., May 1, 1851 and he came west with his parents when he was 11 years old, locating with them in South Dixon township, where for many years after reaching his majority he was a successful farmer.

Twelve years ago he retired, and for the past seven years he suffered from the malady which caused his death. He was a kind and indulgent husband and father and will be greatly missed by his widow and three children: Pearlve, Grover and Hester Jane.

that they had been victimized of $90
Wednesday afternoon by two so-called

One of the men claimed to have he introduced the other as "Dr. M.

their introductory conversation with the old couple they learned their names and the fact that the woman's eyes were not good. They recommend-"Arabian Balm," which has proven to be nothing more than white powder to submit to an examination. They tricked her into believing her eyes were seriously affected, sold her a big bottle of the "Balm," exchanged the enses in her glasses for their own "special ground" plain glass, and then demanded $90, threatening arrest and suit if it was not paid. After getting the money they left, going to

BRITISH EXPERT LAUDS RAILROADS OF UNITED STATES

Tells Congress Committee That They Lead World.

NO GOVERNMENT OWNERSHIP

It Would Mean Political Control and Loss of Efficiency—Declares That Crisis Confronts Country on Account of Transportation Situation—Lowest Freight Rates to Be Found in United States.

Washington, May 14.—That the United States is face to face with a serious crisis in its commercial affairs, due to the conditions by which its transportation system is confronted, was the opinion expressed by W. M. Acworth, England's leading authority on railways, before the Newlands joint committee on interstate commerce at a special session held here to enable the committee to hear his views before his departure for London this week. Two steps are necessary, according to Mr. Acworth, to avert this crisis and to solve the threatening railroad problem confronting the country.

The first is to allow the railroads to charge freight rates sufficient to meet the great advance in operating expenses which is taking place and to enable them to command the credit necessary to provide the extensions and improvements needed to meet the growing demands of business. The second is to do away with the multiple and conflicting systems of regulation that now hamper railway operation and to provide one centralized regulatory agency with such local subdivisions as may be necessary.

Higher Rates a Public Necessity.

Mr. Acworth's views on the transportation situation in the United States were expressed in answer to questions by members of the committee, who asked him to apply his knowledge of railway conditions throughout the world and of the experience of other countries with government ownership to the present problem before the United States.

"The fundamental factor in the situation is very simple," said Mr. Acworth. "It lies in the fact that you cannot get three-quarters of a cent's worth of work done for less than three-quarters of a cent, no matter whether the agency performing it is a government or private enterprise. Freight rates must advance when the cost of performing the service advances as it is doing at present, just as the price of bread or meat or any other commodity increases with increased cost of production."

In answer to a question Mr. Acworth said that he thought American freight rates had been at much too low a level for several years past, that they had reached this low point during the period of cutthroat competition among the roads and had since been held there by regulating bodies. Unless relief were afforded to the carriers very promptly, he said, the result would be a tremendous loss to the people of the whole country through insufficiency of transportation facilities.

Weakness of Government Ownership.

On the subject of government ownership of railways Mr. Acworth said:

"It is impossible to obtain satisfactory results on government railways in a democratic state unless the management is cut loose from direct political control. Neither Australia nor any other country with a democratic constitution—perhaps an exception ought to be made of Switzerland—has succeeded in maintaining a permanent severance. In France, in Belgium, in Italy, parliamentary interference never has been abandoned for a moment. The facts show that government interference has meant running the railways not for the benefit of the people at large, but to satisfy local and sectional and even personal interests."

Prussia, Mr. Acworth said, was the best example of an efficient government railway system, and he pointed out that military considerations were treated as of paramount importance in the Prussian railway system. While American freight rates had been reduced nearly 40 per cent in thirty years, rates in Prussia were nearly as high as at the beginning of the period. While the charge for moving a ton of freight one mile in the United States was a trifle over three-quarters of a cent, the rate in Prussia was 1.41 cents.

As illustrating the difference in rates between government and private roads Mr. Acworth compared the railways of New South Wales, Australia, with those of Texas. While the amount of traffic to each mile of line was about the same in both cases, he pointed out, the Texas railways performed for the public four times as much service as the government owned roads of New South Wales. The charge in Texas for hauling a ton of freight one mile was less than 1 cent, while in the Australian state it was well over 2 cents.

"American railways lead the world," said Mr. Acworth. "Nowadays when men in any other part of the world want to know how to run a railway they come to the United States and study our railways here. The American railways are entirely the result of private enterprise, and I think they go a long way toward proving the case against government ownership."

Delay in Call till Crops Are In.

Washington, May 18.—In response to a suggestion by Senator Jones of Washington that the new selective draft army help harvest crops, Secretary Baker disclosed that it is not expected to call out the first 500,000 men before Sept. 1 because of "the depleted state of our supplies," and that there will therefore be no "appreciable interference with the labor supply of the country until that date."

John Hetler of route 3 was here today.

ILLINOIS GRAIN IS IMPROVING

Oats Good and Wheat Getting Better, Says Federal Bulletin.

SPRINGFIELD, ILL., May 18.—The condition of oats in Illinois is good and wheat is improving, according to the weekly crop bulletin issued by the federal weather bureau covering the week ending May 15.

"Pastures are short in northern counties," the statement continues. "Vegetables are backward, but are apparently in favorable condition. Some potatoes are rotting. Fruit trees are blooming in the northern part of the state."

Piano Bargains

We have two exceptional bargains in slightly used pianos of the higher grade

These pianos have been taken in exchange on player pianos, have had very little use, are in excellent condition and can hardly be told from new. They are unusual values that must be seen to be appreciated. Will be sold on easy terms. An early inspection is suggested.

Child's Apron.

A child will not object to wearing an apron if it is attractive, but to be attractive does not mean that it necessarily has to be expensive. A very good looking model recently seen was made of blue checked gingham, cut kimono fashion with sleeves. The neck line was bound with blue braid, and the same trimmed the narrow cuffs into which the sleeves were gathered. Across the bottom of the apron there was applied a strip of white muslin, on which little Bopeep and her sheep were painted. This applied strip of muslin formed a sort of deep pocket. It could, however, be stitched down.

Crocheting Hint.

It is quite an effort to press the crocheting needle through a stiff edge of material. A good idea is to unthread your sewing machine and, using a heavy sewing machine needle, stitch around the edge, adjusting the length of the stitches to the requirements of the edge. The effect will be that of perforations through which the crocheting needle can be easily passed.

One Want.

"What the world is waiting for," said a man whose garments glistened, "is some sort of a simple, easily applied and inexpensive preparation that would give a dull finish to shiny coats."—New York Sun.

Guest from Moline

Dr. F. H. Gardner of Moline was here Thursday on legal business in connection with settling the estate of his sister, Seraphine L. Gardner of Sublette. Dr. Gardner, after receiving his diploma, opened an office for the practice of medicine in rooms over the Plymouth Clothing Store, opposite the offices of Doctors Wynn and Paine. Dr. Gardner is now a leading physician in Moline. While in Dixon he is a guest at the George Hawley home. Mr. Hawley's mother and Dr. Gardner are cousins.

Box Social

The members of the Keystone League of Christian Endeavor of El dena are quite well pleased with the results of the box social which was given Wednesday evening in Glessner hall. Although but seven of the ladies brought boxes, $5.90 resulted from their sale, and there were enough present to have a very pleasant time. An extemporaneous program was given, and among those participating were Miss Botha and Miss Whitebread, who gave a very pleasing violin duet. Games were enjoyed during the evening.

Dinner for Mr. Philpott

Mrs. Will Block of Minneapolis, formerly of this city, recently entertained in honor of Frank Philpott. There were eight guests, all former Dixonites.

MRS. KIESO SICK SEVEN MONTHS

Restored to Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Aurora, Ill.—"For seven long months I suffered from a female trouble, with severe pains in my back and sides until I became so weak I could hardly walk from chair to chair, and got so nervous I would jump at the slightest noise. I was entirely unfit to do my housework. I was giving up hope of ever being well, when my sister asked me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I took six bottles and today I am a healthy woman able to do my own housework. I wish every suffering woman would try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and find out for themselves how good it is."—Mrs. CARL A. KIESO, 596 North Ave., Aurora, Ill.

The great number of unsolicited testimonials on file at the Pinkham Laboratory, many of which are from time to time published by permission, are proof of the value of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, in the treatment of female ills.

Every ailing woman in the United States is cordially invited to write to the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential), Lynn, Mass., for special advice. It is free, will bring you health and may save your life.

St. Luke's Choir Anniversary

At St. Luke's old stone church Thursday beautiful services marked, not alone the church festival day, Ascension Day, with its meaning of triumph over death; but also the anniversary of the vested choir, which was established nineteen years ago when Rev. John C. Sage, now of Keokuk, Iowa, was rector, and which has been under the direction of Mrs. Wm. H. Smith through all those years. Not only is the day a triumphant one in church history, but in the annals of the choir it means a day of renewal of effort and earnestness encouraged by the reminiscences of what the choir has meant in the past toward the fuller church life.

The days services opened with Holy Communion at 8 o'clock in the morning. In the evening at 7:30 the festival service with its beautiful music and stirring messages, both from the present rector, Rev. H. M. Babin and from Rev. John C. Sage, who was here to extend his greetings to old friends, was held. The reception for old choir members and church members and friends was held in the church parlors following. St. Agnes' Guild had charge of the reception, Mr. and Mrs. George Hawley receiving in an informal way, the guests.

The church presented a very beautiful appearance, the pink and white of apple blossoms and flowering almond contrasting prettily with the gray walls of the church, which has been redecorated within the past year. The apple blossoms and almond were again in the basement parlor, fitted up for the reception.

Many and appreciative were the individuals that composed the large audience at the evening service, and about as many staid for the reception. The choir of 30 voices, the organist, Mrs. Smith, and the orchestra rendered the beautiful numbers in the musical part of the service superlatively, and many were the complimentary comments made later. An enjoyable duet was given by Misses Marcelle Kent and Madeline Coover, two of the younger members of the choir, who sang, "O, Jesus, Thou Art Standing". Two numbers by organ and orchestra, "The Pilgrim's Chorus", and "Song of the Evening Star", are particularly worthy of comment, as was the postlude, "Coronation March", by Meyerbeer.

The sermons given by Rev. H. M. Babin, the rector, and Rev. John C. Sage were exhortations to the higher life, and contained as well comments referring to the place of the choir in church life and the uplift it adds, as well as to the influence of the church upon the individuals in the choir. Rectors Babin and Sage also addressed those gathered late for the reception, and John Earle, John Norton, choir-master of St. James Church, Chicago, Mrs. W. G. Kent, Rev. G. W. Stoddard of the First Baptist church, Mrs. Durkes, Mrs. Gooder of Marengo, and Robert Sterling gave short talks, many of them telling of choir reminiscences, as all the lay speakers were at one time members of the choir. Mr. Sage spoke of the years spent at St. Luke's as five of the happiest in his life. Mr. Stoddard of the Baptist church said that his ideas of an Episcopal choir were quite changed. He said that, of course, he appreciated the excellent music given above stairs but had no idea that the choir members could lay aside formality with such ease and be the genial, friendly group he found below.

GIRLS! MAKE A BEAUTY LOTION WITH LEMONS

At the cost of a small jar of ordinary cold cream one can prepare a full quart of the most wonderful lemon skin softener and complexion beautifier, by squeezing the juice of two fresh lemons into a bottle containing three ounces of orchard white. Care should be taken to strain the juice through a fine cloth so no lemon pulp gets in, then this lotion will keep fresh for months. Every woman knows that lemon juice is used to bleach and remove such blemishes as freckles, sallowness, and tan and is the ideal skin softener, smoothener and beautifier.

Just try it! Get three ounces of orchard white at any pharmacy and two lemons from the grocer and make up a quart of this sweetly fragrant lemon lotion and massage it daily into the face, neck, arms and hands. It should naturally help to whiten, soften, freshen and bring out the roses and beauty of the skin. It is truly marvelous to smoothen rough red hands.

Many were the letters, written by former members of the choir, which were read by Mrs. W. H. Smith, Justice Kent and Mrs. Cupp during the evening. Congratulatory greetings were sent by Bishop C. P. Anderson and Suffragan Bishop Griswold of Chicago, and a beautiful letter, full of good wishes and exhortations, was sent by former Rector Frederick Grant, now of Evanston. Rev. Charles P. Otis, instructor in the Western Theological seminary and filling the interim between Rectors Grant and Babin, sent a hearty congratulatory missive, as did Rev. J. N. Ericsson, another former rector and now of St. John's church, Yonkers, N. Y. Former choir members writing included Avis Hawley Wilbur, of Waukesha, Wis.; Alfred Pearce conducting a laundry in Los Angeles, or as he aptly expressed it, "taking in washing for a living"; and telling of his brother Archie who is in the employ of the Southern Pacific Railroad; Maude Cheate Ankeny of Blue Earth, Minn., telling of her happy family life; Mrs. William Matthews of Spokane who sent her greetings with that of her two small daughters, Loraine and Mary Ann; Mrs. Laura Hawley Miller of Elk Grove, Calif., who wrote of her four boys who, all graduates of the University of California, were all so successful in their business life, and a letter from her son, Roy, now 21 and just out of the university, who said that in studying how best he might serve his country had turned to food production on a farm near Elk Grove; Avarina Davies Westerman of Madison; Elmer Fahrney, manager of a Koehn studio in Chicago; Cecile Heckman Russell in a characteristic laugh-producing letter; Louis Deeter, who had just passed the pharmacist test at Springfield and was manager of the drug department in the Congress hotel, Chicago; and a number of others. It was a pleasure to the Dixon choir to thus keep in touch with former members, all of whom are making so good in their life work, and who each attribute a great deal to the influence of their choir work. A letter from Harold McCleary, with the Smith's Meat Co. of Vancouver, B. C., arrived this morning, too late for the reunion.

A pretty feature of the evening was the baptism of Orville Kaylor Bryan, little son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Bryan, the latter a former choir member, and of Rachel Buckingham, one of the younger choir members.

Members of St. Agnes Guild served fruit frappe and cake during the hours of pleasant social intercourse and reminiscing. The occasion, in all, will remain unfaded as one of the happiest of anniversary reunions.

To Play in Oregon

Mr. A. H. Stoddard will play the service next Sunday at Oregon in the First Presbyterian church over which Rev. A. R. Bickenbach, a former pastor of the Dixon Presbyterian Church, presides. Mr. Elmer Rice will sing.

In the evening a union Y. M. C. A. service will be held in the Methodist Episcopal church of Oregon, and Mr. Stoddard and Mr. Rice will appear upon the program there, as will also Mr. James Clemon and Mr. Earl Sennett. Secretary Der Kinderen of the Dixon Y. M. C. A. will speak.

With Mrs. Wasley

The O. E. S. Parlor Club will be entertained Monday afternoon by Mrs. John Wasley at her home, 222 Crawford Avenue. It has been customary for the club to meet at the home of Mrs. Wasley at least once a year, and the occasions are always pleasurable. Mrs. Jerry Raymond and Mrs. S. W. Youngman, with Mrs. Wasley, will be the hostesses. They will be assisted during the serving by Mrs. Lester Campbell and Mrs. L. P. Cooling.

Pennsylvania Corners' Aid
Misses Grace Netze and Ethel Seyster will be dinner hostesses of the Ladies' Aid Society of Pennsylvania Corners at the meeting of Wednesday, May 23. Everybody will be welcome.

Church Warning

CRUISER SAVES U. S. SHIP

Captain Tells How British Craft Forces "U" Boat to Submerge.
Boston, May 18.—Captain James McDonald of the Allan liner Sardinian reported that he encountered a submarine off the Irish coast while on a voyage from a British port to this country. The submarine, which was several hundred yards away, apparently was trying to launch a torpedo at the steamer. Captain McDonald said, when a British cruiser hove in sight, immediately the undersea craft turned toward the cruiser and let loose a torpedo, which missed its mark, he said whereupon the warship opened fire, and sent eight shots at the submarine, forcing it to submerge.

NO DEVELOPMENTS IN BANK ROBBERY

IT IS BELIEVED CRESTON BANK ROBBERS WERE FRIGHTENED AWAY.

Rochelle, May 18—Nothing new was learned of the Creston bank robbery episode at an early hour this morning. The expert locksmith will arrive in the village at 9:30 this morning and until he forces an entrance into the safe no information can be given as to the possibility of a loss. It would seem that the burglars were frightened away before they had time to touch off a fuse. The Farmers' bank of Creston on May 2 showed cash on hand to be currency, $2868, gold coin $202.50, silver coin $877.75, and minor coin $335.42. The bank is capitalized at $35,000 with $6000 surplus and $3720.58 undivided profits. The deposits total $155,066.39 and the total resources and liabilities are $192,787.73.

The receipts of the day's business were locked in the vault last night and an armed guard placed in the bank building. Thos. Joce is cashier and W. H. Dickinson president of the institution.

The bank was entered by burglars early Wednesday morning and the combination lock on the safe tampered with. The freight depot at Malta was rifled the same morning and a box of fruit secured.

specialists agreed that all that could possibly be done at this time had already been accomplished. However, the detectives were of the opinion that it was a little too early to expect any developments in a matter of this nature, and they expressed it as their opinion that three or four days or a week must elapse before further progress is made.

The Dixon commissioner carefully went over the facts in the case with the heads of several Chicago detective and police departments, using maps, etc., to show the exact geographic conditions, and at the conclusion all of the expert investigators agreed that the proper course is being pursued by the officials here.

GOING UP, GOING UP APPLIES TO FLAG COST

AS WITH EVERYTHING ELSE WE WOULD BUY THERE IS A "SHORTAGE."

It has been stated for some time past that there has been a shortage of flags and other patriotic decorations because of increased demands since the outbreak of the war but local dealers state that this is not true. They say there is no shortage of flags but that the prices have risen almost fifty per cent within the past year. It was stated by a local man this morning that he would have to pay almost twice as much for flags as he paid year ago. Quotations on flags are received each week by local dealers and it was stated that prices were increasing each week. The dealers charge that the market on flags has been "cornered" and that the increase is due in a large measure to this fact. The increased demand has doubtless had something to do with the increase, but the merchants state that this does not account for the exceptionally big increase of the past 12 months.

A local merchant also stated that his quotations on gingham and other dress goods were increasing and that he had received notice to the effect that the price on all gingham would increase 1 1/2 cents a yard on June 1 and that a similar increase was due for September 1. The merchant said that the goods which sold for from 12 to 14 cents per yard about a year ago would sell at from 20 to 24 cents by September 1.

TO PREVENT SPREAD OF MENINGITIS HERE

STATE BOARD OF HEALTH TAKES STEPS TO MAKE EPIDEMIC IMPOSSIBLE.

Springfield, May 18—Between 75 and 100 cases of meningitis have been reported to the state board of health within 90 days, with the result that Dr. St. Clair Drake, secretary of the board, has begun a campaign to stamp out the disease before it reaches epidemic proportions.

The inspectors attached to the department have been dispatched to various quarters of the state to investigate conditions where the disease has appeared, Dr. Drake stated. Co. far Cook county has produced the most cases, he said.

Meningitis is an inflammation of the membranes of the brain or spinal cord, according to state health authorities, and has some points of similarity with infantile paralysis. Two-thirds of the cases are among children ten years old or less, and the mortality is generally high.

Pittsburgh, Pa., and Minneapolis, Minn., have suffered recently from the disease, Dr. Drake said, but bordering states are not seriously affected, and no immediate fear is entertained that an epidemic will develop in Illinois.

Few cases of infantile paralysis are being reported, but more are expected with the advancement of the summer, inasmuch as poliomyelitis is said to be a hot weather disease.

The general health of the state is good, it was stated at the health department offices.

DIXON HIS IDEAL TOWN

With instructions to publish if so desiring, a letter comes from a subscriber of many years, E. Fritz, of Olney, Ill., who still believes that Dixon is the one place in Illinois in which to live. In renewing his subscription, he says, "I would rather do without my dinner than the old Dixon Telegraph. When I think back as far as 1852 when my parents first came to Dixon and I was but four years old and of Dixon as she is now, I still think she is one of the best or the best in the state"—so far ahead of some other towns that they will never catch up, said Mr. Fritz. Mr. Fritz says that Olney is still using left hand plows as they did fifty years ago in Dixon. In his letter he mentions H. Ackert and George D. Kime, both formerly of Dixon. Mr. Kime is with the Robinson Lumber Company at Olney.

WAR REVENUE BILL.

Washington, May 18—Resuming debate on amendments to the war tax bill, the house today by a vote of 122 to 54 refused to strike out section designed to levy a retroactive tax of one third the amount of the income tax of last year.

WILL VETO BILL

Madison, May 18—The Assembly has refused to recall the Evnue state wide prohibition bill. This means the governor will veto it.

Take Advantage Of Our Policy

Selling Hart Schaffner & Marx Suits and Top Coats on the basis of one low price the year around is appealing to the clothing buyers of this vicinity.

Marking up a suit at the beginning of the season to offset the loss at a clearance sale price is not fair, not honest, and not business like "Robbing Peter to pay Paul" is a short way to put it.

Here at this store "Peter" can buy as cheaply as "Paul" whether he buys early or late in the season. Come in and let us demonstrate this new selling plan to you.

New Silk Shirts

Large assortment of new patterns in excellent qualities, just received. Many novelties in the lot that will interest you careful dressers.

ing for the committee bill, well knowing it was not the popular thing to do but I am not much interested in popularity just now for this is not the kind of work that brings popularity. I am concerned in doing the thing I think best for my country.

Marshal Joffre said he would like men in France but he said it was little to send any but trained men. Some seem to think that those German warriors who have been facing shot and shell for three years can be overcome by some psychological effect, but I cannot subscribe to such a doctrine. I have known too many Germans. My thought is that the only way to overcome the Germans is with cold steel in the hands of trained and hardened men. I have been opposed to sending untrained men to the trenches and many have appealed to me not to do so. I cannot favor such a course even if they were to go with Roosevelt, they are or would be Americans and their lives should be guarded.

Now, my friend, one day a man gets a letter to stand by the president and the next day not to stand by him and I simply want to say that I have left the president out of my calculations and have simply been trying in my humble way to do the right thing for my country, and I may have made mistakes that will bring upon my head much censure, but people should stop and consider what we are up against. It is easy to criticize a man but take his place not for a day but for months of such trial and see how it goes.

Now, my friend, I have written you more fully on this matter than I would again, but you have been my friend and I know you are an ardent admirer of Roosevelt, but not more so than I in many respects, but we differ as to policy in this case.

Very respectfully your friend,
JOHN C. M'KENZIE.

ENLISTS WOMEN IN BRITISH FOOD DRIVE

ENGLAND'S FOOD DIRECTOR SET PACE WHICH U. S. MAY HAVE TO FOLLOW.

FIRST APPEAL IS TO WEALTHY

Asks Them To Leave Bread, Meat, Sugar and Potatoes For the Poor.

By F. W. Getty
(United Press Staff Correspondent)
London, April 15 (My Mail)—Appealing to the entire womanhood of Britain to enlist in his army, "Gen." Kennedy Jones, director of food economy, inaugurated his spring campaign against starvation with the vigor that characterized his previous successful battles for England's cause. "Women are the food buyers and the food preparers of the nation," he said, "and I look to them to defeat the present menace of the submarine blockade by preventing extravagance in any form."

As England faces greater danger from the threatened shortage of food than from the central powers on any battlefield, the country's women have been called to a battle which is certain to have as decisive an effect on the outcome of the war as any "push" against the German trenches by their brothers at the front.

To the wealthy the director general made his first appeal.

"Leave bread, meat, sugar and potatoes for the poor," is his original suggestion. "There are many expensive substitutes the rich can afford; but it is necessary that the food on which the working classes depend be supplied them."

"I see no reason for compulsory rationing," Jones said; "I firmly believe that when the people clearly understand the situation they will do what is required. I am here to make them understand."

Kennedy Jones is the square-jawed man of whom Bonar Law, after the recent win-the-war loan achieved success, said: "To this man perhaps more than any other, the success of the loan was due." No country has ever seen such an advertising campaign as the one which brought the hordes of gold tumbling into England coffers from all over the land, and Jones personally had charge of this campaign.

When the loan period expired England could not afford to let such a valuable leader return to comparative obscurity and he was enrolled under Lord Devonport's banner with the title of Director General of Food Economy. In him the country is confident its vital problem will not long remain unsolved.

England has not yet awakened to the reality of the crisis. Despite Devonport's daily appeals and long newspaper columns of statistics and warnings and the premier's occasional remarks on the subject, the country at large goes on eating, almost all it can get.

"I am enlisting the women on my side" was the new director general's first statement to the public. "If every one will loyally observe Lord Devonport's directions for household rations (4 pounds of bread per week, 2½ pounds of meat and ¾ pound of sugar) the food supplies will be maintained."

This is the most encouraging news on the subject England has heard in many a day.

"But," Jones continued, "there can be no dodging the restrictions."

The ministry of food has divided its nation saving campaign into four sections:

Obtaining supplies and maintaining stocks;

Equitable distribution;

Restricting consumption by a series of rations, carefully considered in regard to every interest; and

The teaching of economy and the bringing home to the people its urgent necessity.

For the present, Jones announced, he will direct his energies toward accomplishing the fourth duty.

He said: "I look to every man and woman to support me; if they will do so there will be no need for food tickets, or family books, which will entail an infinity of trouble and the creation of undesirable officialdom."

We shall try to do without fresh orders excepting as regards hotels, restaurants and clubs, the proprietors of which have asked the food controller to lay down definite rules for their guidance and to treat all alike.

There is no intention at present of interfering with the sale of simple sweets and confectionery; 100,000 people depend for their livelihood on the sale of sweets and it would not be just to ruin a number of small shopkeepers, mostly women. There will be quite enough sugar for the children's lollipops, if adult consumers will keep within their three-quarters of a pound a week.

A movement is on hand to establish public kitchens in several districts. But if the rich will give first consideration to the needs of the poor and if everyone will faithfully observe Lord Devonport's instructions, there will be no need for more drastic action."

TAX ON INCOMES BOOSTED AGAIN

One-fourth Increase on $40,000 Is Proposed.

HOUSE IN EXCITING SESSION

Earlier Report That Administration Would Ask Further Raise in Huge Revenue Plan Modified by Kitchen. Incumbents Suddenly Find New Support—Rush With Amendments.

Washington, May 18.—Representative McAdoo announced that the ways and means committee would not attempt to bring the total of war revenue bill up to $2,245,000,000, the amount Sec. McAdoo informed the house early in the day would be required to meet half of the expense the first year of the war. The total of the measure probably will exceed $1,800,000,000, Mr. Kitchen said, and if there is a shortage it will be made up later in another bill.

Millionaires' Tax Is Boosted. Voting in committee of the whole, the house raised by one-fourth all income taxes on incomes between $40,000 and $1,000,000. If the action of the house prevails the government will take forty-five per cent of every income of $1,000,000 and over.

As revised the surtax would be: Between $40,000 and $60,000, 10 per cent; $60,000 to $80,000, 13.75 per cent; $80,000 to $100,000, 17.50 per cent; $100,000 to $150,000, 21.25 per cent; $150,000 to $200,000, 25 per cent; $200,000 to $250,000, 30 per cent; $250,000 to $300,000, 33.75 per cent; $300,000 to $500,000, 37½ per cent; $500,000 to $1,000,000, 41.25 per cent; $1,000,000 and over, 45 per cent.

An amendment by Representative Paige of Massachusetts that 65 per cent of the salary of each member of congress be turned over to the government during the war with Germany was rejected, 147 to 42, amid howls of derision.

Insurgents Are Supported. Unexpectedly the insurgent movement, which won a vote on the first increase Wednesday, got support from the administration itself. The treasury department notified Chairman Kitchen of the ways and means committee that the $1,800,000,000 to be raised by the war tax bill was a half billion short of what the government probably would need. Mr. Kitchen, who fought the income tax increases, promptly switched to their support. He said it would be necessary to raise $2,245,000,000 instead of $1,800,000,000.

On the first vote the house raised the surtaxes on incomes between $60,000 and $80,000 and made it 13.75 per cent instead of 11, as proposed in the bill. Wednesday it increased the rate for incomes between $40,000 and $60,000.

Rush in With Amendments. With the advantage of administration support Republicans and Democrats in favor of the increases began to pour in amendments with prospects of getting them through.

REDMOND PARTLY ACCEPTS

Irish Leader Rejects Plan for Partition of Ireland.

London, May 18.—John Redmond, leader of the Irish nationalists in the house of commons, rejected the proposal of Premier Lloyd George for a settlement of the home rule question, but accepted the proposal for the immediate calling of a convention to decide on a government for Ireland.

Mr. Redmond, in a letter to Premier Lloyd George, accepts on behalf of the Irish party the proposal for "assembling a convention of Irishmen of all parties for the purpose of producing a scheme of Irish self-government" on condition that the "basis on which the convention is to be called is such as to insure that it is fully and fairly representative of Irishmen of all creeds, interests and parties; and secondly, that the convention be summoned without delay."

SOLDIERS VICTIMS OF POISON

Captain of Pennsylvania Regiment Dies—Members Are Stricken.

Pittsburgh, May 18.—Four more soldiers of the Third Pennsylvania infantry, on police duty, were removed from camp at Port Perry to hospitals, suffering from poison, while military authorities investigated the death of Lieutenant Corcoran and the illness of twelve guardsmen. The soldiers Wednesday were served with a meal from the restaurant conducted by Carl Miller near their camp. In a few minutes Lieutenant Corcoran was dead. Within an hour a number had been seized by similar illness, and Major Foos ordered a strict investigation.

Dr. C. B. Schilder, coroner's physician, who conducted the autopsy on the body of Lieutenant Corcoran, expressed the belief he had not died from ptomaine poisoning, as death had come very suddenly after the meal had been eaten.

PRACTICAL HEALTH HINT.

Keep the Sink Clean. Grease in the sink is a very prolific cause of disease. It can not be accumulated from dishes and utensils, and when small bits of vegetable matter adhere to it a shelter is given to mischievous bacteria. Besides, grease will clog the drain and become a menace and an inconvenience. The surest and simplest cleansing agent is a strong solution of washing soda and boiling water. The sink should first be scrubbed with soap and the hot solution then dashed down the drain. This cleaning should be done at least once a week.

SYNOPSIS.

CHAPTER I—Kazan, the wild sledge dog, one-quarter wolf and three-quarters "husky," distrustful of all men because of their brutal treatment of him, learns to love his master's wife when she is kind to him in new and strange surroundings.

CHAPTER II—He shows snarling enmity to McCready, who is to accompany Thorpe and his wife to the Red River camp.

CHAPTER III—Kazan knows that McCready is a murderer. McCready stealthily carcases Isobel's hair and Kazan attacks him. Thorpe whips Kazan. McCready tries to murder Thorpe and attacks Isobel. Kazan kills him and then, fearing the club in punishment, runs away into the forest.

CHAPTER IV—Torn between love of his mistress, the fear of his master's club and the desire of the wolf nature in him, he at length sends forth the wolf cry.

CHAPTER V—Kazan runs with the wolves, fights their leader, becomes master of the pack, and mates with Gray Wolf.

CHAPTER VI—Kazan and the pack attack Pierre Radisson, his daughter Joan and her baby, but in the battle Kazan turns dog again and helps drive off the wolves.

CHAPTER VII—Kazan's wounds are dressed and he is tied to the sledges.

CHAPTER VIII—Pierre and Kazan drag the sledges. Gray Wolf follows at a distance. Pierre dies, a mile away from their home on the Little Beaver.

CHAPTER IX—Out of a blizzard Kazan drags the sledges with Joan and the baby on it to safety and then goes back to Gray Wolf. He spends the long winter hovering between the lure of Joan and the baby and Gray Wolf.

CHAPTER X—In their den on the top of Sun Rock puppies come to Gray Wolf and Kazan in the spring.

CHAPTER XI—A lynx kills the puppies and blinds Gray Wolf. Kazan kills the lynx. Joan and her husband go away to the South. Kazan stays with Gray Wolf.

CHAPTER XII—Kazan and Gray Wolf travel. He is eyes to her and she is ears and nose to him.

CHAPTER XIII.

Always Two by Two.

It was January when a guide from the post brought Paul Weyman to Henri Lot's cabin on the Waterfound. "It is d— strange," said Henri. "I have lost seven lynx in the traps, torn to pieces like they were no more than rabbits that the foxes had killed. No thing—not even bear—have ever tackled lynx in a trap before. It is the first time I ever see it."

This aroused Weyman. He was one of that growing number of thoughtful men who believed that man's egoism, as a race, blinds him to many of the more wonderful facts of creation.

"There is one big wolf and one smaller," said Henri. "An' it is always the big wolf who goes in an' fights the lynx. I see that by the snow. While he's fighting, the smaller wolf makes many tracks in the snow just out of reach, an' then when the lynx is down, or dead, it jumps in an' helps tear it into pieces. All that I know by the snow."

During the two weeks that followed, Weyman found much to add to the material of his book. Not a day passed that somewhere along Henri's trap-line they did not see the trails of the two wolves, and Weyman observed that—as Henri had told him—the footprints were always two by two, and never one by one. On the third day they came to a trap that had held a lynx, and at sight of what remained Henri cursed in both French and English until he was purple in the face. The lynx had been torn until its pelt was practically worthless.

Weyman saw where the smaller wolf had waited on its haunches, while its companion had killed the lynx. He did not tell Henri all he thought. But the days that followed convinced him more and more that he had found the most dramatic exemplification of his theory. Back of this mysterious tragedy of the trap-line there was a reason.

Why did the two wolves not destroy the fish-eater, the ermine and the marten? Why was their feud with the lynx alone?

Weyman was strangely thrilled. He was a lover of wild things, and for that reason he never carried a gun. And when he saw Henri placing poison baits for the two marauders, he shuddered, and when, day after day, he saw that these poison baits were untouched, he rejoiced. Something in his own nature went out in sympathy to the herculean outlay of the trap-line who never failed to give battle to the lynx. Nights in the cabin he wrote down his thoughts and discoveries of the day.

One day the big idea came to Henri. Weyman was with him when they struck fresh signs of lynx. There was a great windfall ten or fifteen feet high, and in one place the logs had formed a sort of cavern, with almost solid walls on three sides. The snow was beaten down by tracks, and the fur of rabbit was scattered about. Henri was jubilant.

"We got hem—sure!" he said. He built the bait-house, set a trap and looked about him shrewdly. Then he explained his scheme to Weyman. If the lynx was caught, and the two wolves came to destroy it, the fight would take place in that shelter under the windfall, and the marauders would have to pass through the opening. So Henri set five smaller traps, concealing them skillfully under leaves and moss and snow, and all were far enough away from the bait-house so that the trapped lynx could not spring them in his struggles.

"When they fight, wolf jump this way an' that—an' sure get in," said Henri. "He miss one, two, three—but he sure get in trap somehow."

That same morning a light snow fell, making the work more complete, for it covered up all footprints and buried the telltale scent of man. That night Kazan and Gray Wolf passed within a hundred feet of the windfall, and Gray Wolf's keen scent detected something strange and disquieting in the air. She informed Kazan by pressing her shoulder against his, and they swung off at right angles, keeping to windward of the trap-line.

For two days and three cold starlit nights nothing happened at the windfall. Henri understood, and explained to Weyman. The lynx was a hunter, like himself, and also had its hunt-line, which it covered about once a week. On the fifth night the lynx returned, went to the windfall, was lured straight to the bait, and the sharp-toothed steel trap closed relentlessly over its right hindfoot. Kazan and Gray Wolf were traveling a quarter of a mile deeper in the forest when they heard the clanking of the steel chain as the lynx fought to free itself. Ten minutes later they stood in the door of the windfall cavern.

It was a white clear night, so filled with brilliant stars that Henri himself could have hunted by the light of them. The lynx had exhausted itself, and lay crouched on its belly as Kazan and Gray Wolf appeared. As usual, Gray Wolf held back while Kazan began the battle. In the first or second of these fights on the trap-line, Kazan would probably have been disemboweled or had his jugular vein cut open, had the fierce cats been free. They were more than his match in open fight, though the biggest of them fell ten pounds under his weight. Chance had saved him on the Sun Rock. Gray Wolf and the porcupine had both added to the defeat of the lynx on the sand-bar. And along Henri's hunting line it was the trap that was his ally. Even with his enemy thus shackled he took bigger chances than ever with the lynx under the windfall.

The cat was an old warrior, six or seven years old. His claws were an inch and a quarter long, and curved like scimitars. His forefeet and his left hindfoot were free, and as Kazan advanced, he drew back, so that the trap-chain was slack under his body. Here Kazan could not follow his old tactics of circling about his trapped foe, until it had become tangled in the chain, or had so shortened and twisted it that there was no chance for a leap. He had to attack face to face, and suddenly he lunged in. They met shoulder to shoulder. Kazan's fangs snapped at the other's throat, and missed. Before he could strike again, the lynx flung out its free hindfoot, and even Gray Wolf heard the ripping sound that it made. With a snarl Kazan was flung back, his shoulder torn to the bone.

Then it was that one of Henri's hidden traps saved him from a second attack—and death. Steel jaws snapped over one of his forefeet, and when he leaped, the chain stopped him. Once or twice before, blind Gray Wolf had leaped in, when she knew that Kazan was in great danger. For an instant she forgot her caution now, and as she heard Kazan's snarl of pain, she sprang in under the windfall. Five traps Henri had hidden in the space in front of the bait-house, and Gray Wolf's feet found two of these. She fell on her side, snapping and snarling. In his struggles Kazan sprang the remaining two traps. One of them missed. The fifth, and last, caught him by a hindfoot.

Henri and Weyman were out early. When they struck off the main line toward the windfall, Henri pointed to the tracks of Kazan and Gray Wolf, and his dark face lighted up with pleasure and excitement. When they reached the shelter under the mass of fallen timber, both stood speechless for a moment, astounded by what they saw. Even Henri had seen nothing like this before—two wolves and a lynx, all in traps, and almost within reach of one another's fangs. But surprise could not long delay the business of Henri's hunter's instinct. The wolves lay first in his path, and he was raising his rifle to put a steel-capped bullet through the base of Kazan's brain, when Weyman caught him eagerly by the arm.

"Wait!" he cried. "It's not a wolf. It's a dog!"

Henri lowered his rifle, staring at the collar. Weyman's eyes shot to Gray Wolf. She was facing them, snarling, her white fangs bared to the foes she could not see. Her blind eyes were closed. Where there should have been eyes there was only hair, and an exclamation broke from Weyman's lips.

"Look!" he commanded of Henri. "What in the name of heaven—" "One is dog—wild dog that has run to the wolves," said Henri. "And the other is—wolf."

"And blind!" gasped Weyman.

"Oui, blind, ins'neur," added Henri, falling partly into French in his amazement. He was raising his rifle again, when Weyman seized it firmly.

"Don't kill them, Henri," he said.

"Give them to me—alive. Figure up the value of the lynx they have destroyed, and add to that the wolf bounty, and I will pay. Alive, they are worth to me a great deal. Heavens, a dog—and a blind wolf—mates!"

He still held Henri's rifle, and Henri was staring at him, as if he did not yet quite understand.

Weyman continued speaking, his eyes and face blazing.

"A dog—and a blind wolf—mates!" he repeated. "It is wonderful, Henri. Down there, they will say I have gone beyond reason, when my book comes out. But I shall have proof. I shall take twenty photographs here, before you kill the lynx. I shall keep the dog and the wolf alive. And I shall pay you, Henri, a hundred dollars apiece for the two. May I have them?"

Henri nodded. He held his rifle in readiness, while Weyman unpacked his camera and got to work. Snarling fangs greeted the click of the camera-shutter—the fangs of wolf and lynx. But Kazan lay cowering, not through fear, but because he still recognized the mastery of man.

Henri shot the lynx, and when Kazan understood this, he tore at the end of his trap-chains and snarled at the writhing body of his forest enemy. By means of a pole and a babiche, Kazan was brought out from under the windfall and taken to Henri's cabin. The two men then returned with a thick sack and more babiche, and blind Gray Wolf, still fettered by the traps, was made prisoner. All the rest of that day Weyman and Henri worked to build a stout cage of saplings, and when it was finished, the two prisoners were placed in it.

Before the dog was put in with Gray Wolf, Weyman closely examined the worn and tooth-marked collar about his neck.

On the brass plate he found engraved the one word, "Kazan," and with a strange thrill made note of it in his diary.

After this Weyman often remained at the cabin when Henri went out on the trap-line. After the second day he dared to put his hand behind the sapling bars and touch Kazan, and the next day Kazan accepted a piece of raw moose meat from his hand. But at his approach, Gray Wolf would always hide under the pile of balsam in the corner of their prison. The instinct of generations and perhaps of centuries had taught her that man was her deadliest enemy. And yet, this man did not hurt her, and Kazan was not afraid of him. She was frightened at first; then puzzled, and a growing curiosity followed that. Occasionally, after the third day, she would thrust her blind face out of the balsam and sniff the air when Weyman was at the cage, making friends with Kazan. But she would not eat. Weyman noted that, and each day he tempted her with the choicest morsels of deer and moose fat. Five days—six—seven passed, and she had taken a mouthful. Weyman could count her ribs.

"She die," Henri told him on the seventh night. "She starve before she eat in that cage. She want the forest, the wild kill, the fresh blood. She two—three year old—too old to make civilize."

Henri went to bed at the usual hour, but Weyman was troubled, and sat up late. Midnight came.

He rose, opened the door softly, and went out. Instinctively his eyes turned westward. The sky was a blaze of stars. In their light he could see the cage, and he stood, watching and listening. A sound came to him. It was Gray Wolf gnawing at the sapling bars of her prison. A moment later there came a low sobbing whine, and he knew that it was Kazan crying for his freedom.

Leaning against the side of the cabin was an ax. Weyman seized it, and his lips smiled silently. He moved toward the cage. A dozen blows, and two of the sapling bars were knocked out. Then Weyman drew back. Gray Wolf found the opening first, and she slipped out into the starlight like a shadow. But she did not flee. Out in the open space she waited for Kazan, and for a moment the two stood there, looking at the cabin. Then they set off into freedom, Gray Wolf's shoulder at Kazan's flank.

In the swamp Kazan and Gray Wolf found a home under a windfall. It was a small, comfortable nest, shut in entirely from the snow and wind. Gray Wolf took possession of it immediately. She flattened herself out on her belly, and panted to show Kazan her contentment and satisfaction. Kazan kept close at her side. A vision came to him, unreal and dreamlike, of that wonderful night under the stars—ages and ages ago, it seemed—when he had fought the leader of the wolf pack, and young Gray Wolf had crept to his side after his victory and had given herself to him for mate.

The hair had now begun to grow over Gray Wolf's sightless eyes. She had ceased to grieve, to rub her eyes with her paws, to whine for the sun-light, the golden moon and the stars. Slowly she began to forget that she had ever seen those things. She could not run more swiftly at Kazan's flank. Scent and hearing had become wonderfully keen. She could wind a caribou two miles distant, and the presence of man she could pick up at an even greater distance. On a still night she had heard the splash of a trout half a mile away. And as these two things—scent and hearing—became more and more developed in her, those same senses became less active in Kazan.

He began to depend on Gray Wolf. She would point out the hiding place of a porcupine fifty yards from their trail. In their hunts she became the leader—until game was found. And as Kazan learned to trust to her in the hunt, so he began just as instinctively to heed her warnings. If Gray Wolf reasoned, it was to the effect that without Kazan she would die. She had tried hard now and then to catch a porcupine or a rabbit, but she had always failed. Kazan meant life to her. And—if she reasoned—it was to make herself indispensable to her mate.

It was her habit, spring, summer and winter, to snuggle close to Kazan and let her beautiful head rest on his neck or back. If Kazan snarled at her she did not snap back, but slunk down as though struck a blow. With her warm tongue she would lick the long hair between Kazan's toes. For days after he had run a sliver in his paw she nursed his foot. Blindness had made Kazan absolutely necessary to her existence—and now, in a different way, she became more and more necessary to Kazan. They were happy in their swamp home. There was plenty of small game about them. Rarely did they go beyond the limits of the swamp to hunt.

One day they struck farther than usual to the west. They left the swamp, crossed a plain over which a fire had swept the preceding year, climbed a ridge, and descended into a second plain. At the bottom Gray Wolf stopped and sniffed the air. At these times Kazan always watched her, waiting eagerly and nervously if the scent was too faint for him to catch. But today he caught the edge of it, and he knew why Gray Wolf's ears flattened, and her hindquarters drooped. The scent of game would have made her rigid and alert. But it was not the game smell. It was human, and Gray Wolf slunk behind Kazan and whined. For several minutes they stood without moving or making a sound, and then Kazan led the way on.

Less than three hundred yards away they came to a thick clump of scrub spruce, and almost ran into a tepee. It was abandoned. Life and fire had not been there for a long time. But from the tepee had come the man-smell. With legs rigid and his spine quivering, Kazan approached the opening to the tepee. He looked in. In the middle of the tepee, lying on the charred embers of a fire, lay a ragged blanket—and in the blanket was wrapped the body of a little Indian child. Kazan could see the tiny moccasined feet. But so long had death been there that he could scarcely smell the presence of it. They slunk away, their ears flattened and their tails drooping, and did not stop until they reached their swamp home. Even there Gray Wolf still sniffed the horror and her muscles twitched and shivered as she lay close at Kazan's side.

Safety First For Investors.

A conservative policy would prompt all buyers of securities to invest at least a portion of their capital in sound bonds. Many investors have a preference exclusively for stocks because the latter may render a higher yield or may fluctuate more widely, thus offering larger chances for speculative profit. Dividend paying shares of the seasoned sort are not to be belittled, and they will perhaps always form the major portion of the average investor's purchases. There is reasonable safety in them. But firmer "cornerstones of fortune" are found in the better class bonds. These are not necessarily gilt edged, but they are well secured. In times of prosperity the issuing corporations have no difficulty in meeting interest charges. In times of depression dividends on stocks may be suspended, but the enterprise must pay interest on its bonds or submit to foreclosure. And in such event the bondholder rarely suffers loss. Their high degree of stability and safety commands good bonds as an indispensable part of any well established estate.—Leslie's Weekly.

Save Your Eyesight.

"A great many men who are well enough informed on other topics do not know the first principles of how to conserve their eyesight." Dr. Eugene L. Fisk is quoted in World's Work. "They may be conscious of eye strain and yet unconsciously go right on doing many things to increase that strain, things such as these—reading a newspaper on a jiggly street car, working with a light directly behind them or directly in their faces, reading or working in too bright a glare or in a dim or flickering illumination. They do not realize that they might well limit their allowance of moving pictures. They do not know the harm in too brilliant a desk light. They buy worthless patent nostrums for the eye and have a positive dread about adopting glasses. The price they pay for all this is often extremely dear. It ranges from constant physical discomfort to loss of sight."

Lungs of the Whale.

Concerning the breathing apparatus of the whale an eminent naturalist says: "The windpipe does not communicate with the mouth. A hole is, as it were, bored right through the back of the head. Engineers would do well to copy the action of the valve of the whale's blow hole. It is impossible to imagine. Day and night, asleep or awake, the whale works his breathing apparatus in such a manner that not a drop of water ever gets down into the lungs. Again, the whale must of necessity stay a much longer period under water than seals. This alone might possibly drown him, inasmuch as the lungs cannot have access to fresh air. We find that this difficulty has been anticipated and obviated by a peculiar reservoir in the venous system, which reservoir is situated at the back of the lungs."

Marked the Snakes.

A member of the house of representatives last season had a habit of marking certain bills on his bill file with a blue pencil, making curious spiral wriggly lines all over the face of each bill he marked.

"Why do you mark your bill file in that manner?" one day asked the legislator who sat next to him.

"I do that," he answered, "because them bills has a snake in them, and they ain't goin' to wriggle through without my votin' agin them. I know them when I get them by the blue snake marks."—Harrisburg Star-Independent.

Retaliation.

Mrs. Newlywed—If you hadn't made me dent this cream pitcher by throwing it at you we might give it to Belle and Jack when they get married.

Mr. Newlywed—Give it to them by all means. Jack introduced us, and Belle gave us the pitcher. It will be retributive justice.—Exchange.

Fearless.

"There goes a man who has faced death in every possible form without a tremor."

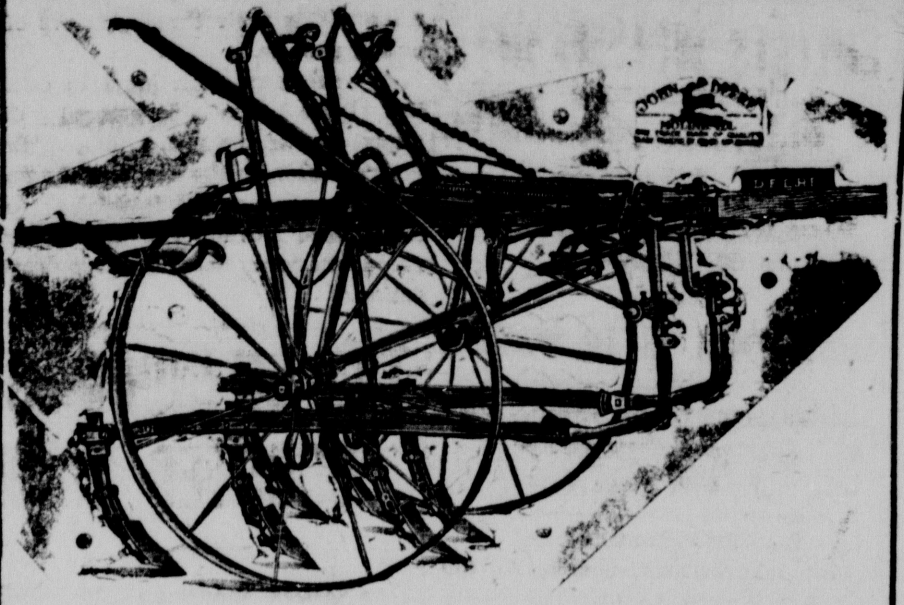

"He doesn't look like a man who has led a particularly adventurous life."

"He hasn't, but he goes to the movies every night in the week."—New York World.

Worldly Wisdom.

"Now that my engagement to Edgar is broken off I wonder if he will ask me to return the jewels that he gave me."

"If he doesn't ask for them I'd send them back at once, for in that case they're not genuine."

If you want to interest a man show him how he can save time and labor. Show him how he can make one movement do the work of two or three.

Are Composers Short Lived?

Many great musicians were afflicted with physical infirmities. Mozart, who lived to the age of only thirty-five, died of consumption. Schumann, who died at the age of forty-six, was for some years before his death confined in an asylum. Beethoven reached the age of fifty-seven, but for many years previous to his death was quite deaf. Mendelssohn died at the age of thirty-six. Schubert at thirty-one. Weber at forty. Chopin at forty. Purcell at thirty-seven and Beethoven at thirty-three. There are, of course, a few exceptions. Bach, Haydn and Handel all outlived their threescore years and ten. The latter, however, was for some years totally blind.

Joseph Dauntler of Prophetstown called on his Dixon friends Thursday.

Meteorites.

Specimens of meteorites command such a value that those which fall to the earth are generally broken up into innumerable parts and scattered in all directions among the private collections. Thus one of the earliest known meteorites, that found in Equisheim, Upper Alsace, in 1492, is represented in sixty-six collections. The result of this practice is that exorbitant prices are asked by dealers for meteoric material in amounts sufficient for analysis and study.

Mrs. Dahl of Peoria avenue submitted to an operation at the hospital Wednesday.

HARMON

Peter Blackburn and family motored to West Brooklyn Sunday and visited the Oliver Gehalt home.

Willie Kugler won the first prize in a foot race at Dubuque, Iowa; he ran in four minutes and fifty seconds; the first prize was five dollars in gold; they go to different towns on Saturdays to test their ability to run a foot race. Willie is a gritty young man; perhaps when he returns home in June when his school is out we would like to run him a foot race.

John Behrendt is quite an expert mason.

James Morrissey was a caller in Harmon Thursday on business.

Casper Schulte was a caller in Harmon Thursday.

Martin McDermott was a caller in Harmon Thursday.

Mrs. Clyde Sheffler returned to her home in Rock Falls after a short visit with her mother, Mrs. Harry Darr.

Peter Fitzsimmons called Dr. Swingley from Dixon Tuesday to tend a sick horse.

Hugh Sweeney was over from Marion Tuesday looking after business.

John Dempsey and family went to Walton Wednesday called there by the serious illness of her father.

who is in a critical condition at his home.

Mr. and Mrs. William Shaffer and family motored to the Wm. Geldeau home Sunday.

Lem Camery spent Sunday and Monday in Polo visiting friends.

Wm. Camery went to Dixon Friday morning on business.

Jacob Rhodenbaugh has moved in to the house he bought from Mrs. Comery; he will live there until he puts up a new house; he says that he has not settled with the insurance company.

Charles Schoaf and wife have taken possession of the Deets house, which they rented; Schoaf is now at home again from the hospital; he is now practically well from his trouble; he keeps the bandage on his head where he was operated on at the hospital.

Corn planting seems to be going on rapidly; many will have most of their corn planted this week; yet some of them are behind with the work and will not be done for some time.

The men who have the contract for putting in the new bridges are at work on them.

The gang of negroes are putting in new ties and leveling them up the tracks; there is much of that kind of work to do and it may be sometime before they get through they are living in cars and board themselves.

W. H. Kugler and Lem Camery have been at work putting in a new telephone line; they spent a greater part of last week doing it.

Mrs. Frank Swartz was shopping in Harmon Thursday.

Dr. Jennings, dentist, of Rock Falls was a caller in Harmon Friday on professional business.

Smallwood finished filling in for the foundation of the concrete floor for his garage building.

W. H. Kugler and W. H. Smith were putting in a telephone for Jacob Rhodenbaugh Friday.

Jacob Rhodenbaugh has sold all of his junk. He will soon have it all taken away.

Nora Swab has her eye injured; she keeps it tied up and dressed.

D. D. Considine is having considerable tiling done on his farm this spring; there is considerable work on it and some ponds to drain.

J. R. McCormick is going to have some more draining done on the farm he lately bought.

Watkins Bros. have been drawing out a large amount of tile this spring to drain some of their wet land; they have considerable on their half section land.

Some of the farmers have been plowing up their wheat that was frozen out and putting in corn.

Many potatoes have been planted this spring; more than there has ever been around here.

James Morrissey does the farming on the Geo. E. Ross place this summer, besides working his own farm.

The drainage ditch at Harmon No. 2, will have some work done on it this summer; in some places there are so many willows grown up so that they obstruct the free flow of water; they will have them taken out; they will have some more later also put in to drain the farms on either side; they also talk of having the ditch dug deeper to give better drain to the land surrounding it.

Most of the laterals will be put in by tiling as open ditches are always getting filled with dirt; they are also inconvenient to cross with teams in doing farming across them.

The commissioners have levied tax for the purpose of raising money to do the work that is to be done; they raised a levy of about two thousand dollars to carry on the work that is to be done.

The horse that was sick with spine trouble is dead; there was no cure for it.

Samuel Manning was cleaning up the streets and alleys in town taking the stuff to a dumping place.

BERT SAPP TRIAL IS BEGUN AT ALEDO, ILL.

Race Horse Man Is Accused of Murdering Iowa Girl.

ALEDO, ILL., May 18.

A jury has been accepted by state and defense in the Bert Sapp murder trial in the circuit court of Mercer county where Bert Sapp, race horse trainer of Monmouth, Ill., is on trial for the so-called trunk murder of Emma Larkin of Davenport, Ia.

Sapp is charged with killing the twenty-two years old woman in his horse stall in a barn on the Mercer county fair grounds last September during the Mercer county fair at Ale-

The Triumphal March of

A NEW CREATION OF SCIENCE AND NATURE

WHEN we announced Bevo recently, our hopes were high. We knew that we had the most unusual soft drink that had ever been offered: A beverage combining the nutritive extracts of wholesome cereals, the zest of Saazer Hops, a flavor all its own and absolute purity. We knew this because, true to our own ideals, we had experimented for years before we were satisfied to say, "We offer you Bevo—it is a different soft drink—it is good and it is good for you."

High as were our hopes for its reception, we have realized them far and beyond our expectations.

Bevo today is an established popular success. Everywhere the same question is asked:—"Have you tried Bevo?"

Now, one final word. We promise you that, in accord with the known principles of Anheuser-Busch and all its products, Bevo not only will forever maintain its present high standard of quality, but as time goes on our great endeavor shall be to make this soft drink even more perfect in every detail of its goodness.

You will find Bevo at inns, restaurants, groceries, department and drug stores, picnic grounds, baseball parks, soda fountains, dining cars and other places where refreshing beverages are sold.

Guard against substitutes. Have the bottle opened in front of you, first seeing that the seal is unbroken and that the crown top bears the Fox.

Bevo—the all-year-round soft drink

Bevo is sold in bottles only, and is bottled exclusively by Primitive View of the Bullfrog.

The frogs in America, it must here be observed, make a most singular noise, some of them being absolutely whistling, while others croak so loudly that it is difficult at times to tell whether the sound proceeds from a calf or a frog. I have more than once been deceived by the noise when walking in a meadow. These last frogs are called bullfrogs. They mostly keep in pairs and are never found but where there is good water. Their bodies are from four to seven inches long, and their legs are in proportion. They are extremely active and take prodigious leaps.—From an Old Book of Travels.

Will Fane of Harmon was here today on business.

Victim of the Law.

"Now, my lad," said the severe magistrate, "have you anything to say for yourself—any excuse to offer for such early depravity? Fourteen years old and caught picking pockets in the street! What started you on this road to crime?"
"You did, mister."
"I did? What do you mean, boy?"

PRICE OF WHEAT STILL DROPPING

July Option Loses 8 to 16 Cents on Chicago Board.

NEW RUMOR CAUSES SLUMP

Report Said U. S. Government Had Asked Entente Nations to Release Their Huge Holdings—Oats, Corn and Hog Prices Also Affected—Argentina Orders Wheat Embargo.

Chicago, May 18.—Wheat continued its downward rush on the Chicago board of trade, the July option showing a loss of 8 to 16 cents and September 7 to 12 at the opening.

First sales in July were made at $2.22 to $2.14, selling back to $2.18. The close Wednesday was $2.30. September sold early at $2 down to $1.95, then up to $1.98, against the previous final price of $2.07.

Allies Asked to Unload, Rumor.

Selling was induced by the report from Washington that the government had requested the allies to dispose of their large holdings of wheat for future delivery. The government is said to have pointed out to the representatives of the Entente that their buying operations have been responsible for the soaring prices.

If the allied wheat is unloaded the trade looks for a crash in prices such as has never been seen before. It is known that officials of the board of trade that officials efforts to induce the allies to part with some of their holdings, but thus far have met with little success.

There was little demand for wheat, the shorts being indifferent. Weather conditions over the wheat belt were favorable. Minneapolis and Duluth received 227 cars against 235 a year ago, while Winnipeg had 818 cars, against 831 last year. Minneapolis wheat stocks decreased 700,000 bu. for five days.

July corn opened at $1.54 to $1.50 and sold off to $1.48, or 4 1/2 cents lower than Wednesday's close. September opened at $1.45 1/4 to 1.44 1/4 and sold down to $1.42, a loss of 2 1/2 cents from previous close. The weakness in wheat was a factor. Fine weather continued over the corn belt.

July oats opened at 64 1/4 to 64 1/2 cents and sold to 64 1/4 cents, or 3/4 cent lower than Wednesday night's close. July hard was 5 cents lower at $2.20 and July ribs, 1 1/2 cents lower at $2.07 1/2. Hog prices at the yards weak.

Argentina Orders Wheat Embargo.

Buenos Aires, May 18.—The Argentine government announces a prohibition on the exportation of wheat.

It was the government's second announcement of an embargo. The first, effective early in April, was held in abeyance through protest of Great Britain, backed by the United States.

G. O. P. IN REVOLT AGAINST OLD GUARD

Rebels Call Caucus to Depose Leader Mann.

Washington, May 18.—The Republican members of the house of representatives have issued an ultimatum to the entire party that there must be an immediate and complete reorganization of the whole structure of that political organization.

The first step will be to toss Representative James R. Mann of Illinois, the recognized leader of the minority in the house, into the open, together with other leaders of the older wing and to replace them with a steering committee guided itself by young and progressive members of the party.

On April 2, the day that Congress met, there was a party caucus of the Republican members of congress which declared that a steering committee should be appointed. Mr. Mann was able to block this proposal by his personal strength and following and since that time no further action was taken until Thursday when notice was served upon Mr. Mann by the progressive Republicans that unless he called another caucus for the purpose of appointing a steering committee the caucus would be held regardless of his attitude and that he would be stripped of his leadership.

Moss Roses.
The original moss rose was a "sport" or child of the Provence. It seems to me there is nothing lovelier in the whole flower kingdom than a spray of moss rose buds, yet how seldom do we see them nowadays! It is difficult to improve upon the old pink moss for beauty, but just as fine are the other pink sorts, Salet, crested moss, Zenobia and Contesse de Murinais. And the white sorts, with shapely buds gleaming from their bright green garment, seem loveliest of all. These are white bath, Blanche Moreau and perpetual moss, which blooms in bewitching clusters, and is well mossed. There are also crimson sorts, but these are not so lovely. The best of these is crimson globe.

Moss roses have one drawback, their liability to mildew, but with generous treatment and a very little trouble they may be protected from this affliction. They should be planted absolutely free from shade and never against a wall, that all the winds of heaven may sweep around them, and let their roots be set in deep, well drained, rich soil.—From "My Garden."
